Completed Citi New Recruits Phase IV

Having worked casually throughout High-School, Taylor was drawn to the hands-on approach of a Traineeship, "I have always loved working, the feeling of self-achievement and accomplishment". Now employed as a Recruitment Trainee at WPC Group (Sydney) Taylor is enjoying "the best of both worlds" with the combination of course work and hands on learning in the workplace. Taylor is confident that this hands on experience will help her 'stand out from everyone else'.

Taylor completed the Citi New Recruits Program in 2016 and attributes her increased confidence to her participation in the program. Prior to the Citi New Recruits Program, Taylor was unsure of what career path she would like to take, "I wasn't sure what career path I wanted, the course assisted me in realising my potential" she explained.

On reflecting upon her traineeship to date, Taylor has described a number of positive outcomes. "I believe I have had to mature a lot faster to keep up with the working environment" she said. "This has also boosted my self-confidence and life experiences".

Taylor commenced her traineeship the week after her last HSC exam. "My parents we very proud that I am starting my career".

Taylor is already making positive contributions to the workplace with her problem solving skills and consistent display of initiative. She continues to build on her communication skills and the confidence initially gained through the Citi New Recruits Program. Taylor maintains a positive attitude and takes pride in her work. She strives to create an inviting environment and build positive relationships with all clients and candidates.

The Citi New Recruits program and resulting Business traineeship have helped Taylor envisage a future. "The priorities in my life have shifted, my social life has had to be sacrificed and I have focused more on making the most out of my income and savings – setting myself up for my future".
